The San Diego Employers Association Forms a Collaboration with Christopher Olmsted of Barker Olmsted & Barnier

Attorney consultation compliments unlimited HR Consultation at the San Diego Employers Association

San Diego, CA – The San Diego Employers Association (SDEA), a nonprofit organization which provides human resource consulting and training to San Diego businesses, announced today that the organization has formed a collaboration with Christopher Olmsted of Barker Olmsted & Barnier to provide attorney consultation.

A founding member of the Barker Olmsted & Barnier team, Olmsted possesses extensive experience in employment law and business litigation including claims for FEHA, sexual harassment, FMLA, ADA whistle blowing, wrongful termination and more.

“Our clients will benefit greatly from Chris’ expertise and understanding of the challenges that small businesses face today,” said Chris Bryant, President of SDEA.

Chris Olmsted adds, “I am excited about the opportunity to collaborate with the HR industry experts at San Diego Employers Association. With a combined rich history and experience, we share the belief that it is imperative that our clients have access to expert consulting for their legal and HR needs.”

About the San Diego Employers Association

Since 1914, San Diego Employers Association (SDEA) has supported organizations with attracting, coaching and training a more efficient work force. It is a not-for-profit firm that helps its members with valuable services, such as keeping up to date with ever-changing employment laws as well as attracting, developing and retaining valuable employees while avoiding lawsuits, fines, and penalties. Additionally, SDEA can assist companies through difficult labor negotiations and how to best conduct disciplinary action and terminations as well as how to properly document these events.
